12.00 a year in Canada; 12.50 in U.S.

The town tax collector is getting out the notices for the $4.00 education tax. Probably settling in ahead of the provincial income tax notice.

Mr. Malcolm Campbell's new automobile speed record is some 253 odd miles an hour. We know of a provincial government that can spend money faster than that.

The Book of Alberta, failed to chronicle the story of the men who journeyed into the land of Co-op, returned burdened with a load of the co-op baccillus, and spread the dread disease, throughout all the corners of the temple.

The provincial government estimates for road work have been cut to such a small figure that it is not probable they include the continuation of the gravel highway from Brooks on to Medicine Hat. This main east and west highway is one of first importance in Alberta, and should be completed this summer.

No one is worried by dry southwest winds recently, and lack of reserve moisture in the soil is pointed out by the gloomy ones as an indication of a poor crop this year.

Things are bad now, they tell us, but they will be ten times worse if we don't get in crop in 1932. Well, it will be too bad, but there's no use worrying over what might happen when the chances are in favor of not happening.

On a five-year average this district requires sufficient rainfall to grow a fair crop. We have experienced three dry years, and to bring up the average we should get a good supply of moisture this year and next year. The law of averages is in our favor.

OUR NEW INCOME TAX

Alberta's income tax will collect revenue from single persons earning more than $750 yearly, and married persons earning more than $1500 yearly. Figured by the month the exemption limit is $42.50 a month salary for a single person and $125 a month for a married person, with a probable exemption of $400 a year for each child.

While the tax rate of one per cent is not a heavy one, the additional expense is an added burden to the wage earners, most of whom have already experienced one or more cuts in their monthly pay checks.

The estimated revenue from the income tax is $1,744,000, and the estimated number who will pay the tax is 30,000 persons. This works out on an average of about $4.50 per person.

Another five dollar bill gone to that distant place from whence it will never return.

TAKE LIFE AS IT COMES

Don't look for the fawns as you go through life.

And even when you find them, it is wise and kind to be somewhat blind

And look for the virtues behind them.

For the cloudiest night has a hint of light

Somewhere in its shadows hiding; It is better far to hunt for a star, Than the spots on the sun abiding.

The current of life ran ever away To the boom of God's great ocean. Don't set your face 'gainst the river's course.

And think to alter its main; Don't waste a curse on the universe Remember, it lived before you.

Don't butt, at a storm with your puny form; And the sooner you know it's better.

The world will never adjust itself To your will whims to the letter. Some things must go wrong your whole life long.

And the sooner you know it's better. It is folly to fight with the Infinite, And go under at last in the waste.

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR LINES

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 29.—A trans-Atlantic air service with strategic bases at Halifax and New Bedford is sure to come.

Bert Balch, noted flier, said today on his return from Newfoundland on the liner Sylvia.

He would not hasten a guess as to when such a service would be established but he expressed the belief that its development was a certainty, made necessary by development of transportation.

BROWNLEE SAYS INTEREST RATE SOLD BOND LOAN

KIDMONTON, Feb. 29.—Expressing satisfaction at the Alberta debt issue which was awarded success on Monday, Premier J. E. Brownlee stated that an absolutely safe and sound position.

Balancing of the budget was provided for in the estimates now before the Legislature, considering the proceeds of this flotation the province would be in a position to meet its refunding issue of $1,000,000 due in New York in April.

In addition loans to the banks could be largely wiped out, thus leaving the balance sheet almost clear of financial operations.

A clear line of credit to take care of emergency situations would be available, he said.

INCREASED INCOME TAXES CONSIDERED IN FEDERAL HOUSE

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.—Consideration will be given by the government to a substantial increase in the income tax," schedules when attempting to balance the national budget, it was hinted.

Without a dissenting voice, the House of Commons today adopted a resolution, sponsored by W. T. Lucas, U.F.A., Canadian League, considering the field of additional taxation.

Rhodes Agrees

In accepting the resolution on behalf of the government, E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, said the ministry could not anticipate the budget by making a definite statement of taxation at the same time. It agreed "those must able to bear the burden should pay."

INCREASED INCOME TAXES CONSIDERED IN FEDERAL HOUSE

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.—The foreign office was informed today that 600 Soviet Russian troops have been moved in the vicinity of Vladivostok.

This information came from Japanese Consul Yamaguchi at Vladivostok, who reported that troops were stationed in that city and along the Trans-Siberian Railway near the border of North Manchuria.

In a telegram to the foreign office the consul asserted that an iodine factory at Olga Bay was being converted for the manufacture of poison gas and that fortifications at the entrance in Vladivostok harbor and on Russian islands were being strengthened by new heavy guns and anti-aircraft batteries. Most of the troops were new arrivals from European Russia.

FREE TRADE ABANDONED BY GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, March 1.—The historic day which sees Britain after 84 years officially abandon free trade as a national policy also disposes of threats in the national cabinet.

Custons officers at British ports today were busy collecting a 10 per cent ad valorem duty on goods shipped from foreign countries, as with the opening of offices this morning the nation's official trade bill establishing a general tariff went into effect.

Viscount Philipps' speech raised his voice in protest against the provisions of the bill. The former Labor leader hinted that if revenue from the new duties was used to reduce the income tax on wealthy taxpayers he "would be applied to think of the consequences."

The Times says today that in parliament this inference was taken to mean that if budget does not carry out the principle of "equality of sacrifice" to which Prime Minister MacDonald is committed, then Lord Snowden, Sir Herbert Samuel, and other dissentient Liberals will leave the cabinet.

Contentment has one advantage over wealth: people don't try to borrow it from you.

LINDERBERGH'S SON IS

KIDNAPER'S VICTIM

HOPKINS, N. J., Feb. 29.—March 2.—The mightiest enforcement of arms of the United States—from president to policeman—the efforts of thousands of troops, and the open parade of a famous father were aligned to light in a full-scale attempt to locate the kidnapped baby son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

Ransom was demanded for the return of the 20 months old child in a note found pinned to the sill of a window through which the baby was taken from his sick bed Tuesday night. Ransom was threatened the infant if the demands of the note were not met, and the Lindberghs stood ready to pay.

The text of the note was withheld, but a report placed the ransom at $100,000.

Mrs. Lindbergh made an appeal to the abductors to give proper care to the infant. Through the press she noted the baby's diet in detail.

NOTED NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER IS DEAD

Hamilton, Ontario, Feb. 29.—William Southam, pioneer in modern Canadian Journalism and founder of the Southern group of six daily publications, is dead.

His vitality waning with advancing years, Mr. Southam took to his bed about a week ago and the end came peacefully at his home on Saturday night shortly after seven o'clock. His distinguished life had covered a span of 88 years.

The Southam group of newspapers consists of The Calgary Herald, the Winnipeg Tribune, the Ottawa Citizen, the Edmonton Journal, the Hamilton Spectator, and the Vancouver Province.

BRITAIN'S "GOLD RUSH" OF LARGE PROPORTIONS

LONDON, March 1.—The head of one of the biggest bullion firms in London estimated on Tuesday that the British people owned one billion pounds in gold sovereigns and manufactured gold articles. He made his statement on the basis of heavy sales of gold objects during the past few days of Great Britain's "gold rush."

Others have sold ancient articles made by the old goldsmiths, taking advantage of the high price paid for gold at the same time embracing the opportunity to increase the country's gold supply.

OTTAWA EXTENDS SPECIAL RATE ON ALBERTA COAL

OTTAWA, March 1.—Upon the recommendation of the minister of mines, the Privy Council has extended the time limit for one year of the re-shipment of Alberta coal to Ontario. Under the provisions of the agreement, the shipments must come at a special low freight rate to Ontario, where have been discontinued March 15.

JAPANESE TAKE SHANGHAI AND PUSH ONWARD

SHANGHAI, March 2.—Shanghai's hope for quiet after yesterday's retreat of the Chinese troops were wasted this morning in the roar of Japanese guns hurling shells westward from the city's environs on the rear of the withdrawing Chinese.

The Japanese forces continued to push westward along the entire front from the Shanghai-Nanking railway line northward to the Yangtze river. After five weeks of resistance the Chinese forces executed a mass withdrawal along the whole front last night and this morning established a defence line running roughly north and south through the town of Nansing, 10 miles west of Shanghai.

The Chinese warships at the Wootung forts were left isolated by the retreating Chinese army.

League of Nations Assembled to Discuss Shanghai Question

GENEVA, March 2.—On the eve of Thursday's extraordinary session of the League of Nations Assembly Dr. W. W. Yan of China warned league leaders tonight that the world stands at the cross-roads of peace or war.

"There is no middle course," the Chinese delegate asserted. "If Japan is right in this matter, then militarism and brute force remain their way over the affairs of nations. If the new order is to be preserved, the hour has struck to defend it."

Strathmore Farm Holds Three Milk and Butter Production Records

When milk and butter are the objects of conversation, attention must needs be directed to the Canadian Pacific Railway, a supply farm at Strathmore, Alberta, where three bovine records have established outstanding production records for 1931 for the whole of Canada. There is little to choose between the three cows: a place at their pictures tells the story. Excellent stock, well handled, has once more proven its worth and E. F. Jones, the company's Superintendent of Agriculture and Animal Industry, is justly proud of the achievement.

Mona Pontiac Walker—19464—Under Government regulation, led all the milk producers in Canada by over 2,000 lbs., having completed a yearly record on November 27, 1931, with 30,664 lbs. of milk and 1,160 lbs. of butter. In 1930, as a four-year-old, she held another record, with 29,595 lbs. of milk and 1,071 lbs. of butter.

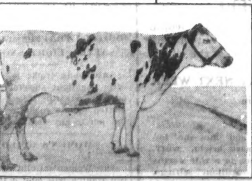

The highest milk production record for 1931 goes to Primrose Lily Fletch—15114—who also held the butter record for the Dominion for the same year. Her performance was 25,071 lbs. of milk and 1,210 lbs. of butter. She is an outstanding show animal and took first prize in the dry cow class at Vancouver and Toronto in 1931.

The four-year-old production record for Canada, for both milk and butter is held by Strathmore Lady McKinley—14399—accorded her records under Government regulation, in 1931, with 25,560 lbs. of milk and 1,200 lbs. of butter. She is a remarkable line best of the best of Holstein pedigree, as is shown by her line lines.

FEEDING CHILDREN

Good eating habits have much to do with health, and such habits are of the greatest importance during the years of childhood when the body is growing rapidly. In addition to knowing what to feed the child, we need also to know how to feed him.

Regularity in feeding is desirable. This means that the proper foods, having been selected and prepared, are to be served to the child at regular meal-times.

If a child is to enjoy his meals, he should come to the table hungry and ready to eat what is before him. The child who is given food in between meals is not hungry at meal time; he is not interested in his food, and so will likely refuse to eat.

The child who is both hungry and rested enjoys his meals. No one, child or adult, desires food when tired. Children should have a short period of rest before going to their meals.

Children are not all alike, nor do they feel just the same day after day. A child will be more hungry some days than on other days. It is not to be expected that children of the same age will eat the same amount of food, or that will want the same amount of food every day.

As long as a child is healthy and is gaining steadily in weight, his mother does not need to worry if he does not eat as much as her friend's child. She should not feel concerned if he does not eat his full allowance every day.

Adults must remember that children imitate them. A child's dislike for some food can often be traced to some adult who has, by word or action, shown that he dislikes that particular food. If the mother or father do not eat certain foods, or if they show their dislike for some particular food, they set an example that the child will very likely follow.

Children demand attention, and the meal-time gives the child an excellent opportunity to attract attention to himself. If the parent is busy, or soiled when the child does not eat, all the child has to do is to refuse to eat and he gets all the attention he loves. That is one reason why it is better for the young child to eat alone, or with other children and not with adults.

New foods should be introduced to the child in small servings. The child should be told quietly that when he has finished the new food he will have the remainder of his meal, the foods to which he is accustomed. If he refuses to eat, he should not be given anything else; above all, he should not be coaxed or scolded, nor should the parent show displeasure. Nothing should be given the child until the next meal. It will not do him any harm to miss a meal or two, provided he has plenty of water to drink. In this way he will become really hungry and will eat the new food. The child who refuses food is in most cases, seeking attention.

Children should be taught to drink between meals. It is a bad habit to drink a glass of water at the beginning of a meal, as this fills the stomach and destroys the appetite.

The cause of most difficulties in feeding is the result of irregularity of meals, feeding between meals, of a mother who is impatient or fussy and who shows her anxiety or anger to the child.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 364 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Keep Panes Clean

To prevent stained windows, clean the windows thoroughly and then use a little glycerine oil over the surface. Polish this lightly with a dry cloth, but do not rub hard, so that the glycerine will be rubbed in. The windows will remain clear for days.

The Home Circle

Cardinal Mending Case

This darning cotton case for six spoons makes a handy gift for the house-mother.

Cardboard oval covered with cretone secure the spoons of darning cotton, tied through with ribbon. You simply cut 4 oval pieces of cardboard each 4 x 3 1/2 inches, then take 2 of them and cover one side with a piece of material. Cover the other two pieces with plain satin. Now place one cretone covered oval over a spoon covered one with wrong sides together and edges even.

Then with matching embroidery cotton sew the two ovals together along the edges, in an over and over stitch. Join the other two ovals the same way. Next arrange the six spoons of darning cotton around the cardboard pieces to mark the positions for six holes. Mark both oval pieces and punch holes in position and join two spoons by running ribbon through the holes in the boards and through the holes in the spoons. Tie in bow. Repeat for two other pairs.

SEWING HINTS

If you will stitch on a thread used in making sheets and other articles, the seams will not draw or pucker. Take a spoon or many spoons of white thread, place them in a basin of boiling water, let them remain until the water is cold, and put the spoons on the register or other convenient warm place until thoroughly dry. You will be surprised to see how much the thread will shrink and pleased to note the smoothness of your seams. When sewing on buttons when there will be much strain, place a pin or small nail on top of the button and sew over the pin or nail then remove it, draw the button up so that the stitches are flat and smooth, wind the loosened at back of button to form a stem, and fasten securely.

GOOD AS NEW

Evening handbags of silk or net material can be removed in an instant and decorative way. Undo the lining sufficiently to allow the hand to grow through for work, then with any old pieces of vividly colored wool work in chain-stitch circles about the size of a threepenny

RECIPES

Fillet of Halibut

One and one-half pounds halibut, one egg, one-quarter cup cold water, salt, pepper, cream, butter, and lemon juice. Cut fish in long strips. Roll and fasten with small wooden skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Beat eggs with fork and mix with water. Dip fish in crumbs, then in egg, and then crumb again. Fry in deep fat until brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

Apple Pie

Pare and chop the four cups of sweet apples. Pour 2 cups boiling water over 4 cups of white oatmeal, when cold, add enough sweet milk to make a very soft batter; add 2 tablespoonsful of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add the apples and pour into well-buttered pan; cover, and bake in a moderate oven for two hours.

Baked Eggs

Break 4 eggs into a well-buttered dish without breaking the yolks. Add pepper and salt to taste, bits of butter, in all one tablespoonful; and 2 tablespoons cream. Set in oven and bake about twenty minutes. Serve very hot.

Griddle Cakes

Two cups flour, 1 egg and one and one-half cups milk, two tablespoons fat, three and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. Put all ingredients but fat in bowl and mix well. Add melted fat. Bake on hot griddle.

Scalloped Potatoes

Butter baking dish; add layers of thin sliced potatoes. Cover each layer with butter, salt and pepper. Dredge with flour. Repeat. Add milk until seen through top layer. Cover; bake in a moderate oven an hour.

Fried Sliced Parsnips

Boil parsnips until tender, and then peel off the skins. Slice the parsnips lengthwise, and fry the slices brown in hot bacon fat. Coat fat gives a delicious flavor, better than butter or lard.

THE SANDS OF TIME

The old fashioned sand-glass graduates to a new use. One woman who bought one of these little egg-shaped found it was also very useful for long-distance telephone calls. She always keeps it near when putting in such a call, and as the conversation begins she watches the little grains of sand slip through the glass telling her when she must finish her task. If the conversation must continue she turns the sand glass the other end up and again times her phone call.

A SAFETY MEASURE

Before washing delicate glass or china place a small folded towel in the bottom of the bowl containing the water. Place another folded towel on the draining board or tray on which the articles are to be placed after washing. In this way many breakages may be averted; also there will be no risk of eggs getting chipped through coming in contact with the hard surface of the bowl.

INK ON THE HUG

The following suggestion for removing ink stains from carpets will be found most successful if carried out correctly. Firstly, take the ink up on a teaspoon, then thickly cover the stain with common salt; this absorbs the ink; repeat the salt process several times, then wash the stain with cotton wool dipped in milk. Lastly, wash the affected part with soapy warm water.

EMERGENCY PLUMBING

Should the sink pipe freeze heat a thin piece of wire to white lead, then push it down the grate as far as possible. Repeat several times, then force down a good handful of kitchen salt. To melt a short time this melts the ice and the pipe is clear again.

DARK POTATOES

When boiling potatoes pour off the first water as soon as it boils, add the new water, and the potatoes will boil quite white.

To Prevent Fatigue

Place a thick rug under the feet while ironing, or while standing very long at any other task, and the work will not be nearly so tiresome.

Light waves are only millionths of an inch in length.

Shingle can often be used with a slight effort in finishing the walls of a den.

Consumption of wine in France has increased more than 30 per cent in the last three years.

The American fishing industry is valued at more than half a billion dollars. It employs 150,000 persons.

Less than one two-thousandth part of the heat radiated by the sun is received by the earth.

Overnight Bedroom Sleeping Cars Popular

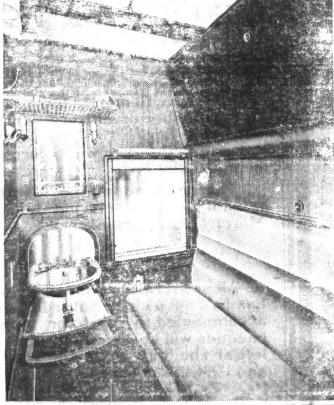

Please reserve bedroom on Canadian Pacific 11:45 p.m. train for Toronto, is a common call nowadays into the railway offices by the travelling public. The company reports a very heavy demand of late for this type of accommodation and this has necessitated operation of bedroom sleeping cars on the route between Montreal and Quebec, Montreal and Toronto, Ottawa and Toronto, Toronto and Detroit, and Montreal and Detroit.

Privacy, comfort and the last word in convenience and luxury are features of this latest development in overnight travel by Canadian Pacific as expressed in these single and double bedroom and compartment cars, which represent the equivalent of the finest of hotel accommodations. They provide all the luxuries and appointments of individual private rooms with a real bed that assures deep and refreshing sleep. Each room has toilet, lavatory, electric fan, overhead ventilator with exhaust fan, reading lamp and other conveniences, the whole being decorated in restful colors. In the double bedroom cars an overhead bed may be raised from the wall, if desired, affording additional facilities.

Some further features of the sleeping cars may be enumerated, which make them so refreshingly different from the ordinary train. The room is heated by hot water, roller bearings assure smoothness of motion, coil spring mattresses invite restful slumber, heavily padded carpeting harmonizes with interior arrangements, creating a general cooling effect, and long and unusually roomy. The service is reminiscent of travelling as a master of transportation luxury and comfort. It is the realization of all those refinements of art and efficiency of which travel equipment designers long have dreamed. From the inception of this new service it has won increasing favor among travellers who distinguish between good average service and perfection in travel. The word "modern" is no longer a mere decorative flourish, but a reality in the most inclusive expression in these cars.

In the women's dressing rooms attached to the sleeping cars there is real comfort and satisfaction. The most fastidious woman will find facilities such as she would expect to see in a first-class hotel. Mirrored dressing table and other toilet accessories provide maximum accommodation without crowding. Here are vanity chairs conveniently placed, ample artificial and natural light in soft and cold running water, specially dispensed soap and a never-ending supply of clean linen. This affords the requisite pendant to refreshing sleep.

The men are treated in like fashion. They too have comfortable dressing rooms where they can relax after not only for the purpose of making their toilet but also for an enjoyable smoke before retiring or after they have slept. KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

Jocelyn Harlowe returns home to New York. Her mother is socially ambitious and wants Jocelyn to marry Felix Kent. She falls in love with Jack Ayleward, a man whom her mother would call a "nobody."

Jocelyn is visited by Nick Sandall who tells her he is her father. Jack is like a son to Nick who is a cripple living in shabby apartments. When Nick finds Jack making love to the girl he hates Jack for being an ex-convict. Jack tells the girl Felix caused him to be sent to jail unjustly and tells her Kent has certain papers which will clear his name. Go on with the story.

"And you were going to leave without a word to me?" Nick was going to.

"It was my plan."

"I'm sure that from the beginning you've tried to separate us. Can't you see how wicked that is? And how selfish. It can help him save him."

Jack, who was now on his feet, stood looking down at her. "Save him—from what?"

She flushed but went on bravely. "From you, Jack Ayleward. From this life of his with you."

Jack began to tug up and down the lettered room. With rough hair and in his shirt sleeves he looked younger than she remembered him. So many years young, said Felix Kent. Scared, yes; by life; but so much younger and more flexible.

The eyes in his spent face began unwillingly to flare, to widen, as she told him of her ride with Felix. "Ask Kent about your father now. Tomorrow. Tell him about me. Put him to the test."

"I will," he heard, labored.

"Yes, I will. I've already asked him about you."

The young man turned to stone. Gray stone. He wet his lips and asked slowly, not looking at her. "Did you ask him to prove his case?"

"Why should I? To me it's proved by his word."

"Then ask him to give you his correspondence with Alexander Talley during the summer of 1929."

"He would have none."

"And if you find the letters?"

"If I find even a scrap of paper that has anything to do with your case, I promise you that you shall have it. I am going now. I won't wait for Nick. I don't believe you will be cruel enough now to take him away from me. Let me go, Jack!" He had seized her hands in a firm grip.

She fled from him. She heard her self laughing breathlessly as she ran down the stairs.

That night after she had finally fallen asleep with her last memory of Jack on her mind, she was awakened early by Marcella.

"The jewels—the jewels are gone. Get up and help me. Tell me where you've hidden them."

Her mother's hands tore her dreams to pieces, hurting her. They were trying to bring something out of her.

"Mother, Mother, please! What is the matter? What have I done?"

"My jewels," Marcella faltered close to Jocelyn's ear. "They're not where they should be. You've taken them!"

It was spoken, Jocelyn now realized, in hope.

"I don't know anything about them, Mother."

But she was remembering her father's visits—the visits she had called fruitless.

She loved Nick. Even now she loved him, this knowing climber-in at bedroom windows, this beastly man whose friends had hard faces and quick eyes. . . . Here pain took her heart in both its hands and squeezed it. "Jocelyn, Jocelyn, what creatures went about under such sobriquets? A hideous clamor came to her mind whose ears she tried in vain to close. "Thief! Thief! Thief!"

She had herself admitted those men into her mother's house with her own hands.

He had not come himself that other night. He had sent Jack. She had admitted Jack herself. He had stayed a long time. He had not been watching her while she played. He had busied his eyes elsewhere. He had quick eyes. Her wrist watch was gone. He had light-fingered hands. . . . they had held her own—Kent's—damned up on them—against his face.

Now she knew what name her father and Jack Ayleward carried on the shrewd implacable tongue of the law. She knew the secret of their quick wealth, their sudden poverty that changed and changed. The next morning Marcella had recovered her self-possession. She came to Jocelyn's room early.

"I will take steps to discover the thief, Jocelyn, very quiet and private steps. There are reasons which you can't know. . . . ah, she did know, too many reasons. . . . "Why I must move very carefully. I will engage the services of a private detective. Meanwhile I entreat you, I command you not to say a word, not so much as a breath about the jewels and my loss of them."

"I promise you mother. On my honor."

"Not a word to anyone, not even to Felix Kent," the name flourished in her ears with the sound of salvation. He rode life proudly with quiet and quiet, knight errant. A warm current of reassurance flooded her chilled heart.

She would marry Felix Kent. At last.

She controlled her nervous quaking and went to summon him.

May I search your bedroom?" he asked her.

"Why certainly, if mother wishes you to."

Jocelyn went along the hall. For a meretricious twenty minutes the inspection of her own room was devalued. Cautious stayed first to examine Mary's quarters.

During that twenty minutes Jocelyn took down her skirt and tamoshanter and jacket from the closet hanger and hook, folded them as flatly as she could and hid them between her mattress and the springs.

Mr. Carrington came in at his leisure and made a quick and sharp examination of her closet, her bathroom, her window and her fire escape. He looked down for some time at the court below with its opening into the alley.

An hour later she breathed easier when she heard the detective take his leave.

Jocelyn thereupon studied coldly and fiercely what must now go down before her wedding day.

She said to Lydia Sandall, "You must find Nick, if he is to be trusted, and persuade him to return to the Jewels."

She said to Jocelyn Harlowe, "Before you marry Felix Kent you must go to Alexander and to yourself that you do not fear the contents of that safe."

And speaking in the character of Mrs. Felix Kent she said to both these girls, "You must be very careful and you must not be afraid."

A small number of church invitations had been sent out, an even smaller number of invitations to a breakfast afterward, a larger number of announcements went through the mails and the papers had their information and their photographs.

To these matters Marcella, with the speed and movements of a marionette, had carefully attended. Jocelyn had stood for the first and second sittings of her wedding gown and the apartment began, surprisingly to her, to fill itself with gifts.

"You're giving me everything, Papa," she murmured, as she was wearing the wedding day just sixty-two hours ahead, "except one thing and that is what I want most."

He had been about to say, good night, one of those lingering good nights that taxed her patience and tormented all her nerves. They were seated together on the small brocade sofa. Felix sat back in the sofa corner and held Jocelyn close against him.

"It's just—," the pale girl faltered lifting her eyes to him and letting them fall again with a content child's timidity or shame, "your confidence."

Felix stiffened, then drew her even closer.

"All right. You shall have it. "What do you want to know? Ask me for a secret."

There fell a silence which Felix pleasantly employed, watching her hair, touching her warm cheek. Jocelyn whispered, "I wish—you will think I'm worse than a baby—but I do wish I could tell Miss Deat that I knew the combination of your private safe."

Felix threw back his head and laughed heartily and tenderly, the laughter of an indulgent elder.

"Little goose! What good would that do you?"

"No good, of course. No practical good. But—spiritually—"

National Motor Show Of Canada Announced

Arrangement of the dates for the National Motor Show of Canada is made by the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It is to be held in Toronto in the Automobile Building on March 25 to 28th, inclusive. Arrangements have been made so that every automobile manufacturer selling in the Canadian market will be represented.

Vacuum Clutch Biggest Advance

Speaking before the Society of Automotive Engineers, a prominent engineer selected the automatic vacuum-operated clutch as the outstanding automobile development for 1932. It contributes more to the comfort, ease and satisfaction of driving an automobile than any other device introduced in recent years.

With the aid of a selector valve, smooth clutch engagement is assured, regardless of the skill or practice of the driver. This prevents any stalling of the engine because of a too-sudden clutch engagement.

The selector valve dampens the clutch at the moment of engagement.

Tin Is Highly Regarded

Tin to the uninformed has little taste and yet it is one of the costliest and most useful of basic materials. Automobiles that draw the dislike of gossip were often labeled as "tinny," and yet the very parts they thought were made from tin were really made from rolled sheet steel. Similarly, there is no tin in tin cans; they are made from this galvanized iron, alloy covered. The outstanding use of tin in the present-day motor car is the electroplating of pistons on a certain make of car. By means of this plating of tin, the piston is closer fitted to the cylinder with resulting more efficient compression and a more perfect fit, as under heat the plating metal flows and fills all the infinitesimal crevices in the piston and cylinder walls. This method of plating increases the life of the pistons. Tin is used to a great extent in a flux with solder on radiators, in the welding of metal on bodies, or wiring and in gas-tight soldering, where perfect sealing at welded joints is essential. Sheet steel gas tank covered with a coating of tin well indeed indestructible and cannot be cut with the conventional tinSmith's shears. The Canadian automobile industry uses a large percentage of the tin and products of tin produced and manufactured in Canada.

Dad: "Look here, my dear. I don't mind your sitting up late with that young man of yours, but I do object to him walking off with my morning papers!"

HYPERGREENS IN THE SHILTER BELT
(Experimental Farms Note)

A shelter belt without evergreens is only a partial shelter. Deciduous trees will check winter wind and accumulate snowdrifts to protect other plants, but without evergreens wind, although checked, will sweep through the naked branches, whipping the good wife's wash on the line, chilling the house and stables, and creating the discomfort that a cold or chilly draft produces. A row or two of evergreens will do much to augment the shelter and, besides, add a pleasing touch of green to a sombre grey or a cold-white landscape. Again, while the evergreens are slow growing, on the start they may prove longer of life than certain deciduous species.

In 1919 the Bluebridge sub-station planted three dozen native white spruce and subsequently added some of this species obtained from Indian Head, as well as Jack pine and Scotch pine from the same source. All these plantings have succeeded with but few casualties, and the native spruce, obtained as seedlings ten or twelve inches in height, have in less than thirteen years attained an average height of fifteen feet except those that were eaten off by rabbits in the winter of 1928-29. They are somewhat shorter. Starting slowly these young spruce accelerated their rate of growth until in certain wet summers they stretched up two or two and a half feet in one season. During the last two years drier weather together with the competition of adjacent trees in the belt has reduced the annual growth to twelve or fifteen inches.

The Scotch pine have also done very well, although some specimens weakened by overcropping and exposure, have succumbed to a bark beetle.

This prompts the suggestion, that in any belt two or more species of evergreens should be planted so that if one is destroyed by a pest there will still be evergreens left. White spruce and Scotch pine would be the writer's first and second choices of evergreens, with Jack pine considered as a third.

The trees may be planted six to eight feet apart in rows spaced likewise, but with the rows staggered.

The evergreens will also hold better if protected themselves by a row or two of other trees to their windward, but they have also established themselves without this advantage.

HOME GROWN PROTEINS
FOR DAIRY COWS
(Experimental Farms Note)

The average feeds grown on private farms are usually too low in protein to support economical milk production excepting where sweet clover and alfalfa are grown.

Koupagee Mch in protein, such as sweet clover and alfalfa, and pea hay, can be grown with good success on most farms. These feeds, along with silage and the usual concentrates that can be grown by the average farmer, furnish sufficient materials for maintenance and milk production for the average cow.

Alfalfa and sweet clover hay each contain from 18 to 19 per cent protein while oat and pea hay contain from 8 to 7 per cent.

The farmer who is concentrating on high milk production and individual records may find it necessary to supplement the home grown feed with high protein concentrates such as linseed meal, gluten meal, or bran.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Ottawa, a mixture of oat and peas is grown as a concentrate. Sufficient peas is mixed with the oats at seeding time to ensure a yield of 6 to 8 bushels of peas per acre in the mixture at harvesting.

A herd of high producing Ayrshires is kept and feeds other than linseed meal and bran are all grown on the station. Linseed meal is fed to high producing cows only because of its richness in protein but also for its laxative and conditioning effect in keeping cows thrifty and vigorous.

At the present time the station herd is being fed roughage consisting of alfalfa hay, silage, and a few roots, while a mixture of oat and peas and barley chop supplemented by linseed meal and bran is fed as a concentrate. The low cost of the latter two concentrates makes feeding of these at quite economical at this time.

Farmers feeding for high production must at all times take into consideration the cost of various feeds. Even though a feed is rich in digestible proteins the cost may not permit of its being fed economically. Satisfactory results have resulted from the above feeds as shown by the herd average for 1921, which was 16,357 pounds of milk containing 4.57 per cent butter fat.

THAT AUSTRALIAN
WHEAT SHIPMENT

Apparently the Vancouver Milling & Grain Company has decided to re-export the 250,000 bushels of Australian wheat recently landed at that city. The wheat was landed without a certificate showing it to be free of the Red chit, and although officials checked the wheat and failed to find any more, it was not allowed out of bond. The refusal to allow the wheat to leave Canada is expected to curb importations planned by other millers in the west.

The fact that the wheat is brought in from Australia to meet the severe competition of Australian pastry flour which has been coming into Vancouver in the last volume. Another explanation is that the wheat was purchased to manufacture bleached flour for which the hard Canadian wheat is not suitable. Canadian wheat manufacturers have been buying flour from northwestern United States. A third explanation was that the wheat was for chicken feed, a Victoria man claiming that Australian wheat could be brought across the Pacific cheaper than Canadian wheat can be brought from Alberta.

THE PICTURES

In "Young as You Feel," his latest Fox starring picture, Will Rogers discards the personal habits of a lifetime and appears for the first time on stage and screen as a well groomed Bond Street tailored gentleman.

Rogers has not gone Hollywood. His striking wardrobe is a definite part of the very human characteristics Rogers portrays as "Lemuel Morehouse," dyspeptic, grouchy old fogey who is compelled to turn ultra modern as an example for his two sons.

"Young as You Feel," which is the screen version of George Ade's hilarious play, "Father and the Boys," is coming to the Orpheum Theatre Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week, March 3, 4, and 5. It deals with the widowed father of two modern sons, a man who has devoted his life to their interests and who wishes them to settle down to business and become happy, contented husbands.

The boys, however, have other ideas. One goes on heavily for society, while the other makes a fortune by a chance meeting with a millionaire. Then Rogers resorts to desperate measures. A revolution takes place in his character, brought about by a chance meeting with a professional entertainer, portrayed by Fifi Dorey, with whom Rogers made so much hilarity in "They and I see Paris."

From a staid old opinionated, dyspeptic set-in-his-ways fogey, Rogers was overnight into a sex blade. His neglect of business is appalling to his manager, played by Lucien Littlefield, and a decided shock to his sons. But Rogers and Fifi ignore all protests and continue their wild rounds of night club and race tracks.

Goodie begins to stir, which is just the needed element to bring his sons to their senses and make them settle down to business.

Gloria Swanson stars in "Indicret," coming next week, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Beauty, drama, witty dialogue, smart settings, and Gloria is her most finished portrayal of a brilliant woman of the modern world.
